In general, homeopathic remedies are produced with a alcohol, water or a combination of both as a base. 21st Century Homeopathics' remedies #1 through #10 are produced in a base of ethanol. This is important to patients who are sensitive to alcohol.

21st Century Homeopathics supplies easy-to-use remedies that provide consistent results and act as a complement to traditional medicine. We know that our products must keep pace with the effects of a constantly changing environment. All remedies produced by 21st Century Homeopathics are designed to effectively meet that challenge.

What is homeopathy? Homeopathy is a medical science, a natural complement to traditional medicine. The word homeopathy is of Greek origin "homeo" meaning similar and "pathos" meaning disease or suffering. Homeopathy is a natural system of health care that stimulates the body's natural defenses and healing powers. Homeopathy is a time-tested, economical and nontoxic form of therapy. Homeopathy recognizes that symptoms represent the body's adaptation and defense against disease, stress and factors that alter its finely tuned systems. Homeopathy treats the underlying problem. Therefore, a physician utilizing homeopathic remedies will attempt to find remedies to help the body cure itself. Homeopathic medicines support a person's natural defenses.

How should homeopathic remedies be used? Homeopathic remedies should be taken on an empty stomach. This includes liquids as well as food. The remedies should be taken 15 minutes – or 30 minutes after a meal or beverage. Do not swallow remedy immediately; allow it to stay in the mouth for approximately 15 seconds before swallowing. Your homeopathic remedies should be stored at room temperature, out of direct sunlight. Always keep homeopathic remedies distant from any aromatic substances such as perfumes, paint or any household (aromatic) contaminants.

When using homeopathic remedies it is recommended to avoid alcoholic beverages, mint and caffeine-containing substances including coffee, tea and chocolate.

What is the difference between a single remedy and a combination (complex) formula? Traditionally, homeopathic remedies are single-remedy medicines. A physician utilizing the single remedy approach to homeopathy may inventory up to several thousand remedies. The approach is very specific and individualized, requiring extensive training and remedy adjustments throughout the treatment. By comparison, a physician utilizing a complex (multiple ingredient and potencies) preparation, will inventory fewer products that are more broad-based. Because of their synergistic effects, the complex formulas do not need the same exacting individualization. They are easier to use and will benefit a broader patient profile. Complex homeopathy can be used as a complement to nutritional protocols.
