Winter Weather Awareness Week

The week of November 16-21, 2014 (Sunday through Friday) has been designated by the National Weather Service (NWS) as Winter Weather Awareness Week for Alabama and Tennessee.

The purpose of Winter Weather Awareness Week is to shed light on the impacts winter weather (ice, snow, cold temperatures) can have on residents across the state of Alabama, particularly in the Tennessee Valley. The week emphasizes the importance of staying prepared and having a proper safety kit for traveling during the winter months. Please join UAH and the NWS in promoting winter weather safety during this year's Winter Weather Awareness Week.

For more information on this and other NWS winter weather products/definitions, local winter weather statistics, and climate information, please click on the link below from the NWS Huntsville forecast office: Winter Weather Awareness Week

Additional information will be posted via the NWS Huntsville Facebook (NWS Huntsville) and Twitter (@NWSHuntsville) pages.

Office of Emergency Preparedness
The University of Alabama in Huntsville
kevin.bennett@uah.edu | (256) 824-6875

StormReady UNIVERSITY