

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Ministries Joining Together to Respond to Children in Need

May 2014 – Disciples Home Missions (DHM), Week of Compassion, and the National Benevolent Association of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), are collaborating with the Church of the Brethren Children's Disaster Services (CDS) to create a new position and initiative that will help meet the needs of children affected by disaster.

A new memorandum of understanding outlines this partnership, providing the framework for a three year focus on expanding Children's Disaster Services in the Gulf Coast region. Funding provided by the Disciples Home Mission, the National Benevolent Association and Week of Compassion will develop a new role of a gulf coast coordinator. This individual will support the developing and training of a larger network of volunteer in Mississippi, Florida, Alabama and Louisiana. By engaging the strength and networks of the Christian Church/Disciples of Christ congregations and their significant children's ministries we see great potential to better meet the needs of children in this disaster prone area.

The partnership includes the training of interested Church members and others in the region as caregiving volunteers and for leadership roles supporting volunteer coordination and volunteer training. A primary goal of this initiative is to train 250 potential volunteers in the next three years. After completing a certification process including a criminal record check, these volunteers will provide direct care to children in shelters and service centers after a disaster. The volunteers will be organized into rapid response teams to be the first caregivers responding after a disaster in their region. These volunteer will also be called to serve larger disasters outside of the region.

The regional coordinator role is key for the success of this initiative. This part time paid position will network with potential partners, engage congregations and help facilitate new volunteer workshops. It is vital that they live in a Gulf Coast state. “The Church of the Brethren is excited for this expanding partnership between the Christian Church/Disciples of Christ and Children's Disaster Services. For several years our two churches have been in conversations on how to work together as peacemakers. I can think of no better way than for our volunteers to join their gifts and talents in providing a caring service ministry for children affected by disaster. It is a ministry that seeks to reconcile the lives of some of the most vulnerable victims after disaster, the children,” shared Stanley Noffsinger, Church of the Brethren General Secretary.

For years DOC members have been volunteering with CDS, providing care to the smallest of disaster survivors. Together we can expand this ministry in critical disaster prone areas to better meet the needs of children and families impacted by disasters,ö comments Roy Winter, Associate Executive Director of the Church of the Brethren.

Kathleen Fry-Miller, Associate Director of Children's Disaster Services, shares that, "Children have unique needs following disaster. They feel the chaos and stress of the disaster and need opportunities to express their feelings and their experience through play. Our dedicated leaders and volunteers are well -trained to provide the nurturing adult presence and open-ended play experiences that support the healing process for children. This partnership will allow us to expand our program in areas of high need."

öThe Church of the Brethren is excited for this expanding partnership between the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) and Children's Disaster Services. For years, Disciples members have been volunteering with CDS providing care to the smallest of disaster survivors. At this critical time in the history of CDS, this partnership helps grow the program beyond the capacity of one denomination. Together we are growing the ministry in critical disaster prone areas to better meet the needs of children and families impacted by disasters,ö comments Roy Winter, Associate Executive Director of the Church of the Brethren.

Leaders throughout the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) are excited about the increased connections and partnership with CDS ministries.

Rev. Brandon Gilvin, Associate Director of Week of Compassion says, öAs part of our ministry as the Disaster, Development, and Refugee Fund of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), Week of Compassion looks for partners in our denominational and ecumenical families to respond to critical needs in the wake of disasters. The partnership between Disciples Volunteering, DHM's Children and Family Ministries, the National Benevolent Association (NBA), and Children's Disaster Services will provide a new avenue for volunteers to show the love of Christ to children impacted by tornados, floods, and other devastating events.ö

öDisciples Volunteering is thrilled to share in this endeavor, partnering with ministries of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) and Church of the Brethren in response to the needs of children, who are among the most vulnerable following disaster. Together, we look forward to expanding and enhancing the critical work of Children's Disaster Services while equipping Disciples to offer their gifts in service to their neighbors,ö reflects Rev. Josh Baird, Director of Disciples Volunteering at Disciples Home Missions (DHM).

Disciples Home Missions (DHM), Rev. Olivia Updegrave also reflected on her excitement about the emerging partnership. öThe love for children and the need to care for our children at all times and in all situations flows from us as compassionate, faithful people. The Family and Children's ministry team stands in an ecumenical relationship of both Disciples of Christ and United Church of Christ. This relationship opens doors for more people and congregations to be prepared to respond when disaster strikes, and God's love is not found in a name or title, but in a response to heal the soul.ö

The collective endeavor of Disciples ministries and the Church of the Brethren supports the work of creating communities of compassion and care, a primary commitment of the ministries of the National Benevolent Association (NBA). Mark D. Anderson, NBA President and CEO, says, "this new collaborative partnership creates some significant connections among Disciples congregations and also Disciples-related health and social service agencies especially those serving families and children. The partnership provides more opportunities for faithful Disciples to be trained and equipped to respond in times of crisis as well as to resource agencies who provide care to children each day. We are eager to nurture these increased opportunities for compassionate care.ö

General Minister and President for the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), Rev. Dr. Sharon Watkins, expresses her added support of Disciples ministries and Children's Disaster Services. "As Disciples, we are a movement for wholeness, God's wholeness. We respond in times of human need and disaster for we recognize our connectedness to one another. This partnership is truly part of our call to be a faithful witness.ö

More information will be released shortly about a new position related to Disciples ministries and Children's Disaster Services. If you or your congregation would like to know more about Children's Disaster Services or to be trained in rapid response volunteer leadership, contact Kathy Fry-Miller at kfry-miller@brethren.org or (410) 635-8734.
