Symun Systems to provide NFBA member discounts on Construction Maestro® software!

The National Frame Building Association (NFBA) and Symun Systems, Inc. are partnering on a new discount program for the popular post-frame estimating software, Construction Maestro.

Effective immediately, all NFBA members will receive a 10% discount on new purchases of Construction Maestro! It gets better: NFBA members who buy the product at the Frame Building Expo* will receive a 20% discount on their new purchase! Visit Symun System's booth (#114) and they'll secure your discounted order.

Construction Maestro allows users to estimate a customer building or deck package—it's easy to use, precise and quick. The system, which is designed for building contractors and lumber companies, features Step-by-Step Design, Positive Error Checking, Customer Templates Environment, Steel Materials, Systems Operations, Advanced Settings, Product Database, Plans, Lists, Openings Point of Sale Interfacing, Reporting and more.

Symun Systems, Inc. co-owners Michael Rinks and Tim Bennett supplied a joint statement about this big news:

"As an NFBA vendor member for over 12 years, this represents an exciting development—not only for us, but also for the post-frame industry. Our new partnership provides a win-win for all involved—from the vendors to the association and its members.

Preferred vendors with products featured within the Construction Maestro product database will also enjoy the benefits through increased visibility and easy product availability within the system."

Increased exposure to the Construction Maestro system will allow more NFBA members to utilize a tool that is unlike any other they've encountered thus far. It's a tool that will continuously save members' time, reduce effort, heighten professionalism, and increase accuracy—all while boosting the bottom line!"

Promotion of the software falls directly in line with the mission of the NFBA and the Post-Frame Market Initiative (PFMI) by providing members with the capabilities they need to be competitive and stay profitable."

The association is equally pleased with the partnership. "On behalf of the association leadership, I would like to express our enthusiasm about this venture to the membership community," says Jeff Henry, NFBA President. "It is a pleasure to work with Symun Systems—a strong supporter of the industry. Thanks to this collaboration, NFBA is extending our benefits offering to include Construction Maestro discounts; this is a tangible cost savings for members."

NFBA looks forward to expanding our member discount program even further—into additional product lines. NFBA appreciates Symun System's interest in leading the program's launch. We look forward to a successful, long-term partnership."

If you are an NFBA member interested in purchasing Construction Maestro for a 10% discount or a 20% discount (must be present at Expo), you may contact Mike Rinks at 888.220.6230 or e-mail mike@symun.com.
