

Let's team up to make ideas happen!

Brillist is an online platform for teaming up on creative project ideas. How it works »

by
Sheila Maithel D'07, Founder, Brillist

Brillist is a community and online collaboration space. Whenever an idea strikes you, Brillist helps you gather a team around it to actually make it happen. It's like an online makerspace that's always open, where you can drop in and join in on a project any time. We've got Dartmouth alumni, Startup Weekend alumni, startup founders, developers, designers, artists, videographers, business strategists, writers, photographers, and more. One Californian web entrepreneur had a product problem that had stumped his existing team for months—so he shared the project on Brillist, found a collaborator, within days, and together, they solved the problem just a few days later. A few Delhiites wanted to put on a Barcamp (after 3 years of failed attempts). By sharing an event project, they got a slate of initial speakers, secured their location and sponsors, and were able to put on a successful event. We've had other projects—projects to design apps, to create promotional videos, to come up with marketing strategies, to develop products—each project brings together an interdisciplinary team (often from countries around the world).

We'd really like to keep growing the global Dartmouth contingent, so we can all create and collaborate anytime! Join us at brillist.com!

Why Brillist?

*Brillist = brilliance + catalyst.
Brillist exists because*

Life's too short not to do what you love.

If you can dream it, team up on Brillist and do it!

