

Dartmouth Entrepreneurial Network Chicago

by JJ Hanley D'82

What's an 18-below wind chill when you live in Chicago and you're a "Triple D" — Determined Dartmouth Alum and DEN" member? It's a great Dartmouth outing!

Despite the frigid temperature on January 31, about 40 people joined Chicago DEN to tour the new Chicago tech hub 1871. The startup space opened last year in the Merchandise Mart as an incubator space for digital designers, engineers and entrepreneurs to create, work, innovate and network. 1871 is supported by the leading venture players in Chicago, such as Excelerate Labs, Sandbox Industries, New World Ventures, University of Chicago, and Northwestern University.

Touring 1871 is just the first in an exciting line-up of entrepreneurial learning and networking activities that await Chicago DENners in the coming year. DEN Chicago also partnered with the Tuck Chicago Alumni group to co-host a networking event recently held at the University Club on April 23rd, and our summer Happy Hour is not to be missed.

The mission of DEN Chicago is to provide opportunities for Dartmouth Alumni and friends of Dartmouth with entrepreneurial interests to learn from, connect to, and engage with each other.
