

BULLETIN:

Helping a Client Use an HSA to Pay Long Term Care Insurance Premiums

genworth.com

January 27, 2014

Effective: Immediately

States: All

Important Note:

Using a Health Savings Account (HSA) to pay for LTCI premiums can be an attractive option for some of your clients, but make sure they understand the tax considerations and other limitations.

Contact: Contact:
Genworth Advanced Sales
800 532.9116

If you have clients who own a Health Savings Account (HSA) or are eligible to open one, they may be able to use tax-advantaged dollars from the account to pay for all or part of their Long Term Care Insurance (LTCI) premiums. Using an HSA to pay for LTCI premiums may be an attractive option for clients who are not eligible to deduct their premiums as either a self-employed person or as unreimbursed medical expenses on their federal income tax returns.

Let's Look at a Hypothetical Example

Your client, Dean Barker, age 52, is looking for a tax-advantaged means of paying his LTCI premiums. He doesn't own a business, so he can't deduct premiums as a self-employed person¹. He has also checked with his accountant and has been told he won't be able to deduct his premiums as unreimbursed medical expenses. Is there another option available to him? If he owns an HSA or is eligible to open one, he may be able to use tax-advantaged dollars from that account to pay his LTCI premiums.

Deducting Long Term Care Insurance Premiums

Getting a federal income tax break on the payment of LTCI premiums can be difficult. Here's why: Qualified LTCI premiums paid by an individual taxpayer for policies owned by him or herself, or by his or her spouse and eligible dependents, are deductible medical expenses (IRC §213(d)), but only if that taxpayer itemizes deductions, and then only to the extent that eligible premiums (the lesser of the age-based limit premiums [see below] and actual premiums paid), plus all other unreimbursed medical expenses, exceed 10% of adjusted gross income (AGI). Exception: the deduction threshold is 7.5% of AGI for any year between 2013 to 2016 that you are 65 or older. In other words, few people can actually take advantage of all or even part of this deduction.

Genworth Financial companies include:

Genworth Life and Annuity Insurance Company, Richmond, VA

Genworth Life Insurance Company, Richmond, VA

Genworth Life Insurance Company of New York, New York, NY

Only Genworth Life Insurance Company of New York is admitted in and conducts business in New York.

Long term care insurance products issued by Genworth Life Insurance Company and in New York by Genworth Life Insurance Company of New York.

FOR PRODUCER/AGENT USE ONLY. NOT TO BE REPRODUCED OR SHOWN TO THE PUBLIC.

© 2014 Genworth Financial, Inc. All rights reserved.

108127 01/22/14

Helping a Client Use an HSA to Pay Long Term Care Insurance Premiums - Page 2

The HSA Alternative

Another way to pay for LTCI premiums is through an HSA. Not everyone qualifies for an HSA, and even for those who do, using the account to pay LTCI premiums isn't always an option. Let's look at how it can be done.

HSA Eligibility: The first step is to verify that your client has an existing HSA or is eligible to open one. The general qualifications are as follows:

- The individual must be covered by a high-deductible health plan. A high-deductible health plan has an annual deductible of at least $1,250 for individuals, $2,500 for families (2014 limits, adjusted for inflation) and annual out-of-pocket limits not exceeding $6,350 for individuals and $12,700 for families (2014 limits, adjusted for inflation).
- Even if an individual has a high-deductible health plan, he or she cannot contribute to an HSA if they are also (i) covered under a non-high-deductible health plan or a plan that duplicates benefits of their own plan, such as a spouse's plan through the spouse's employer², (ii) claimed as a dependent on another's income tax return, or (iii) covered by Medicare.

HSA Contribution Limits

- For 2014, the maximum annual contribution amount is $3,300 for individuals and $6,550 for families (limits decreased by aggregate contributions to an Archer MSA).
- Eligible individuals age 55 or older may also make additional catch-up contributions each year. The catch-up contribution amount for 2014 is $1,000. This amount is currently not scheduled for inflation adjustments in future years.

HSA Tax Considerations

- Employer HSA contributions are not included in the employee's income (pre-tax). This includes contributions to an employee's HSA by their employer using the amount of the employee's salary reduction made through an IRC §125 cafeteria plan.
- An individual can take an above-the-line deduction for eligible contributions they make to their HSA.
- Any growth inside an HSA is tax-free if withdrawals are made for qualified medical expenses.
- Distributions that are not made for qualified medical expenses are included in taxable income and are subject to a 20% penalty tax. The penalty tax does not apply if the distributions are made after death, disability, or attaining age 65.

Other HSA Considerations

- If the HSA is funded by employer contributions, the employer must comply with the "comparability" requirements of IRC §4980E³.
- If an individual is eligible to contribute to an HSA on the first day of the last month of the tax year (December 1, for most people), they can make the full annual contribution. If an individual is no longer eligible on that date, their contributions apply pro rata based on the number of months during the year they were eligible.
- An individual may make a one-time tax-free transfer (trustee-to-trustee) from their traditional or Roth IRA to their HSA in the amount of the maximum deductible contribution they could make to their HSA (IRC §408(d)(9)).
- HSA balances are not forfeited if not withdrawn by the end of the year.

Using an HSA to pay LTCI Premiums

Qualified LTCI premiums are a qualified medical expense. As a result, an individual may withdraw money tax-free from their HSA to pay qualified LTCI premiums. Qualified LTCI premiums are the eligible premiums (lesser of actual premiums paid and the "age-based" premium limits shown below). Therefore, only the qualified LTCI premiums may be withdrawn tax-free from an HSA.

Hypothetical Example Continued:

Dean Barker (age 52) owns an HSA and contributed $3,300 to it in 2014.

Dean also owns a Genworth Life Insurance Company LTCI policy. His annual premiums are $2,500. His eligible age-based premiums are $1,400. Because Dean's eligible premiums are a qualified medical expense for HSA purposes, he may withdraw up to $1,400 tax-free from his HSA in 2014 to pay towards his LTCI premiums. The balance of his LTCI premium, $1,100 is not a qualified medical expense, and he may not withdraw HSA funds to pay for it or otherwise deduct it.

AGE-BASED LONG TERM CARE INSURANCE PREMIUMS⁴

Age at End of Taxable Year	2014 Premium Limit Amount
40 or younger	$370
41 through 50	$700
51 through 60	$1,400
61 through 70	$3,720
71 and older	$4,660

Disclaimer

The Genworth Financial companies wrote this content to help you understand the ideas discussed. Any examples are hypothetical and are used only to help you understand the ideas. They may not reflect your client(s)' particular circumstances. Your clients should carefully read their contract, policy, or certificate, when applicable. What we say about legal or tax matters is our understanding of current law, but we are not offering legal or tax advice. Tax laws and IRS administrative positions may change. We did not write this material for use by any taxpayer to avoid any Internal Revenue Service penalty. Your clients should ask their independent tax and legal advisers for advice based on their particular circumstances.

If this material states or implies that it was prepared or distributed to promote, market or recommend an investment plan or arrangement within the meaning of IRS guidance, or such use may be reasonably expected, then, as required by the IRS, the following also applies:

The tax information in this material was written to support the promotion or marketing of the transaction(s) or matter(s) addressed in this material.

¹ A self-employed person may deduct eligible premiums for accident and health insurance, including LTCI premiums they pay for themselves, their spouse and other eligible dependents. They need not consider the percentage of AGI threshold for deductibility of medical expenses (IRC §162(l)).

² However, you can still be eligible if the additional insurance is limited to providing benefits only for certain specified coverage items (including long term care) IRC §223(c)(1)(B).

³ IRC §4980G incorporates the comparability rules of §4980E by reference (Treas. Reg. §54.498G-1, A-1).

⁴ IRC §213(d)(10)(A); Rev. Proc. 2013-35

Insurance and annuity products:

- Are not deposits.
- Are not insured by the FDIC or any other federal government agency.
- May decrease in value.
- Are not guaranteed by any bank or its affiliates.