Nothing but apple

There's nothing better than a glass of pressed British apple juice - and this one is particularly good. It's made from 100 per cent British apples, and it's got a bit of a kick. The juice is made from a selection of apples that is especially good for you, and it's got a bit of a kick. Just looking at these photos of these cakes, you can tell they're really good. I tell ourselves how they taste, their softness, and their unique flavors. What of all, I like that they are made for us, not just for the sake of it.

Life gets hot with Asian spices

Nothing beats fresh herbs for cooking but sometimes, it is good to keep some dried versions in the pantry for emergencies. The flavour is usually more intense than fresh herbs too. The important thing is to use up the herbs within three months of opening. Otherwise, you might as well season the food with dust. Henry Langdon, an Australian brand, has put together a spicy, Asian herb blend with dried coriander and kaffir lime leaves, plus a healthy dose of chilli flakes and fluffy sea salt crystals. Mix some olive oil with the rub and use it to coat pork chops. Marinate for a couple of hours in the fridge before grilling or pan-frying. It can also be mixed with butter and tucked between the skin and breast meat of a chicken before roasting. Rub the inside of the chicken cavity with the herb mix too. The coriander is a bit muted but the chilli and kaffir lime shine. Those pork chops are great with a squeeze of lime juice, and they also make substantial sandwiches. Henry Langdon Coriander, Chilli And Kaffir Lime Sea Salt Rub, $14.75 for a 140g jar, from Huber's Butchery, 18A Dempsey Road, tel: 6737-1588, open: 9.30am to 8pm (weekdays), 9.30am to 7pm (weekends)
