United States Government Accountability Office (GAO) Internships

The United States Government Accountability Office (GAO)--a federal auditing and investigative agency that supports Congress—is looking for many IT analyst interns for this upcoming summer to work primarily in its Washington, D.C. office.

GAO is looking for BIT and ACIS majors and has in the past, hired a number of such VT students as interns, who were later offered full time positions.

If you are interested, below are links to two GAO intern announcements; they include information on:

- how to apply,
- the pay ($30K per year) and other benefits, and
- the application deadline (which is Monday, April 21, 2014, so please hurry!):

Please note that the below links are to two IT analyst positions—one for Information Technology intern and another for Computer Science intern; it has been our experience that Pamplin BIT and ACIS students qualify under both announcements given the curriculum in the business school.
