Mission:

Women in Math and Science unites women from various math and science branches to build camaraderie and share ideas. We host distinguished female speakers from across the nation to share their research and experiences in their fields. Additionally, we hold events for the Girl Scouts and Columbus City School Girls to come to Ohio State so that we can promote and support their interest in choosing a future career in science!

Women in Math and Science has 3 main goals:

- 1) Socialization
- 2) Academic
- 3) Outreach

WIMS hosts fun events where members socialize with members of our fellow sister, male and co-ed STEMM groups.

In addition, WIMS also hosts "Lunch with Professors" series so that members can personally get to know with their favorite professors in a more casual setting.

Most Recent Event:

In March 2014, Dr. Juli Goldstein, marine mammal veterinarian, came to speak to Ohio State as part of the WIMS Shell Distinguished Women in Science Speaker Series. In addition, Dr. Goldstein is the founder of the Stryder Cancer Foundation, an avid runner of marathons that support other philanthropies and a beauty queen (holds the current title of Ms. USA Petite 2013).

Dr. Goldstein is also the real-life marine mammal veterinarian of Winter the Dolphin who had her tail amputated. Dr. Goldstein and the team created a gel prosthetic for Winter, rehabilitated and taught her to swim again with her new tail. This technology is now being used to help the US troops returning from Iraq and Afghanistan.

This event was made into the movie "Dolphin Tale" with actors Morgan Freeman, Harry Connick Jr. and Ashley Judd. The sequel to "Dolphin Tale" will be released September 12, 2014 in AMC Theaters! She will have a cameo role and will walk the red carpet at the preview in LA!
