An oft-repeated suggestion and concern during last year's Listening Posts was the need for better communication. In order for our synod to effectively engage in mission and ministry, we must continue these dialogues, develop deeper relationships, and foster more consistent opportunities to gather in community. In response to these needs, I have scheduled five events around our synod to continue conversation. I am calling these "opening conversations" because I want to be in conversation with people throughout the synod on a regular basis and so this is the beginning of our life and conversations together.

In addition to sharing initial insights about our synod and the direction we are headed, I am interested in hearing your thoughts, concerns, hopes, and dreams. It is an exciting time to be the church. We have challenges, to be sure, but we also have amazing opportunities before us and much to celebrate. As I begin this ministry I am filled with hope because of what I believe God is doing through us as synod.

I look forward to gathering with you and other Lower Susquehanna Synod Lutherans on these five Sunday afternoons. There is a hunger in our communities that is both physical and spiritual. We are called together to feed the world—mind, body, and spirit—in the name of Christ. Let the journey and the dialogue continue.
