At the conclusion of the training, participants will be able to:

- Understand the principles of how people learn.
- Understand four primary methods of instruction used by the BSA.
- Practice the BSA's training Techniques they have learned across the BSA's leadership development programs

This is the first part of the three-part train-the-trainer continuum (T3) in Scouting designed to introduce both youth and adult trainers to the skills needed to teaching techniques and skills regardless of their experience to provide effective training from unit-level youth leader training taught by youth for youth, to position-specific and supplemental training for adult leaders. It will help those who might have trained for other organizations learn the BSA's training techniques. And, it will help freshen up the skills of current BSA trainers. BSA's instructor-led training is designed around a variation of what educators are calling the "team-based learning model."

Trainer's EDGE is now the second part of the continuum for trainers of advanced leadership training courses such as NYLT and Wood Badge. Enhances the trainer's abilities and increased familiarity with the EDGE Model that is used throughout training. Recertify every three years. Fundamentals Course is not required if you have Trainer's EDGE. The third part of the continuum will be the Master Trainer Course taught at one of the BSA's national volunteer training centers or at the regional level.
