Grenada: True Blue Resort and Aquanauts present Rebreather Weeks. From $1528 per diver based on double occupancy

True Blue Resort and Aquanauts present Rebreather Weeks

Throughout the year Aquanauts Grenada offers dedicated rebreather weeks, where rebreather divers from around the world get together for a week of silent diving. They dedicate a boat and guide for rebreather divers and dive all the deeper sites and wrecks interesting for CCR divers. To have a dedicated rebreather boat, they will need a minimum of 4 CCR divers.

For these packages your stay is at the beautiful True Blue Bay Resort as it is the most convenient for rebreather divers with a dive dock to get on the boat and Aquanaut's booster pump and rebreather room for storage and prep. You don't have to drag your unit up to your room every day, they have a washing and preparation facility right on the dock and your "baby" is going to be stored securely overnight. Alternatively if you are using an Evolution or Inspiration, you could just travel with your head (the unit head; hopefully the other one you take with you anyway) and rent the unit from Aquanaut, cutting down on luggage tremendously. They have 6 units to rent and they are completely sanitized each time.

Package includes 7 nights' accommodation in a standard room, airport round trip transfer, daily deluxe continental breakfast buffet, all taxes and service charge.

Dive Package includes 5 days of 2 CCR Morning Boat dives, 2 CCR tanks rental per day, air diluent and O2 fills, 1 bailout tank per day filled with air or Nitrox 30%, weights and all taxes

ECO & SUSTAINABLE

Sea Turtles Rescue and Recovery Volunteer

A fabulous option in the Fall months to any itinerary in Cozumel!

The beautiful island of Cozumel is the natural birthing place for Green, Hawksbill and Leatherback turtles with an average of 3000-4000 nests laid each year. While this may sound like an enormous amount, in recent years turtle populations have plummeted towards extinction and are in serious danger. According to the Sea Turtle Conservancy as well as other authorities, it is estimated that only one in 1,000 to 10,000 will survive to adulthood due to a combination of natural obstacles and human threats.

A non-profit organization commissioned by the Mexican Government, tirelessly monitors and protects the islands turtles from lay to hatch, however with little money and even less manpower, they rely on the assistance of volunteers to help save as many turtles as possible and give them a greater chance of survival during the beginning stages of their lives.

As a volunteer you will begin your afternoon with a brief introduction to nesting turtles' habits and behavior, and the importance of the work you are about to participate in. Followed by instruction on how to clear a nest, you will then be taken to recently hatched nesting grounds on the pristine beaches on the backside of Cozumel with breathtaking views as your backdrop. Digging down in the sand, you will retrieve and count hatched nests and provide a report on any eggs you find which part of critical data collected by the government and contributes to the research and protection of Cozumel's turtles.

Invariably you will find yourself an instrumental part of a rescue, locating hatchlings that have been left behind and unable to leave the nest without assistance. You will personally get to release these hatchlings into the sea, protecting them from land and air predators as they make their natural journey towards the ocean under your guidance.

As the sun begins to set, your day ends with a turtle release. Any hatchlings healthy enough to make the journey but were unable to be released when they were first found will make their way to the sea at this time to join their siblings. Many find this a spiritual experience and very few are left untouched at witnessing such a small yet monumental feat, especially when knowing you played an integral part.

You may choose to fully participate in the clearing of nests or simply observe depending on your comfort and physical level.

Full participation:     $50                             Observer only:             $40

Includes presentation, afternoon experience, release and T-shirt. 95% of your contribution is given directly to the non-profit organization conducting the volunteer program. Transportation is not included.
