Beirne said she owes her success to the “amazing” team that she surrounds herself with and a welcoming community in Allyn.

“I love this community,” she said. “I’ve never felt so welcome somewhere. The excitement that came from the community was exciting for me. It gave me the drive to do more. I’m especially happy to provide services here so that people don’t have to drive somewhere.”

Looking ahead, her goals for the next five years include reaching out more to the community, Beirne said.

“I want to make sure the community knows we’re here,” she said. “I still run into people who say, ‘I can’t believe how big it is and that you’re here.’ I want to get us out there, and now with hiring the two receptionists and having a full house, I plan to put myself out there more.”
