Attention: A Special Report for Struggling MMA Fighters...

Discover the Secret to Crippling Your Opponent's Focus with a Glance, Hannibal Lector-Style Calm in Fights and the Underground Techniques for Triggering Match-Dominating Aggression at Will

Listen Bro,

The octagon is YOUR jungle. Any opponent who dares stand in front of you must be put down like a red-zone pit bull. Nothing should stand in your way. You must be absolutely confident that you can take care of business...

I love MMA because you can't pretend to be a fighter. The octagon crushes posers.

But, I've noticed that a lot of fighters have gotten soft... (Yep I said it). Don't get me wrong, they've put the work in at the gym. Their technique is flawless. They can put you in a world of hurt - pronto.

The problem starts when they get in the ring. The lights out grappler with the bone pulverizing kicks, and cartilage crushing jab fades away when they face a real opponent.
