The Search Committee invites applications and nominations for the position of the Dean of the School of Medicine of New York Medical College (NYMC).

The Dean will work closely with department chairs, the faculty, and other constituents to lead, support, and sustain the School's vision, philosophy, and mission as it relates to our academic and research goals. We seek a leader with vision and determination.

NYMC, founded in 1860, is a private, non-profit, and limited mission health science university committed to the education of professional and graduate students. In 2011, NYMC joined the Touro College system - the largest private university in the US under Jewish auspices. NYMC is located in Westchester County, New York.

We educate students who are highly qualified to assume leadership roles in the fields of health care and biomedical research. Advanced degrees are awarded from the School of Medicine (M.D.), the Graduate School of Basic Medical Sciences (M.S., Ph.D) and the School of Health Sciences and Practice (M.S. in Speech Pathology, M.P.H., D.P.T, Dr.P.H). Currently, there are 1500 students: about 800 in the School of Medicine and 700 in the other two schools. Our partnership with Touro, with undergraduate campuses and schools of law, psychology, education, social work, business, and two schools of pharmacy and two osteopathic medical schools, present multiple opportunities for interprofessional education and dual degrees.

The candidate for Dean should have an MD degree and be an experienced and knowledgeable leader with a national reputation and a record of outstanding accomplishments who will be able to identify with the missions of NYMC. This candidate should possess a commitment to medical education; a commitment to research excellence, scholarship, and service; have a proven record of administrative leadership; and a record of attracting and hiring a talented and diverse faculty with a strong commitment to diversity in leadership and the ability to work with a varied group of educators and stakeholders.

We offer a competitive salary and generous benefits package including graduate school tuition.
