KEYNOTE SPEAKER:

Christina Puchalski, MD

George Washington University

Spirituality and religiosity are recognized as factors that contribute to quality of life and healthy coping strategies in many persons facing life-threatening illnesses such as cancer.

These life threatening events can also give rise to spiritual distress. When combined with chronic or acute pain and other physical and psychological symptoms, spiritual pain can be a component of a patient's total suffering which the palliative care team (The Collective Soul) seeks to alleviate.

The purpose of this advanced course is to provide a better understanding of the Palliative Care team's role in relieving biopsychosocial and spiritual suffering.
