

The Traveler Invites you to Experience Provence May 2015

Imagine spending eight perfect days in Provence, allowing you the time to truly experience that magical and mysterious quality we so often describe as the “French Way of Life.” In Provence, life is sharing food, wine and stories with friends and family. In other words, life is sharing experiences.

Barbara Tolliver and Susan Taylor of the Traveler along with Zoe-Ann Bartlett of the Intentional Table, in partnership with Bainbridge-based Earthbound Expeditions, are blending their talents and traveling experience to create a unique journey to Provence.

Four nights will be spent in each of two charming locations: St Remy and Aix-en-Provence, in order to sufficiently relax and explore. Then, from your lovely home bases, in Intentional Table style, not only will you enjoy tastings of local produce, cheeses, olive oil, honey and other regional specialties, you will meet their passionate producers. Get “back stage” visits of farms, vineyards and markets to see how, where and why their products are so lovingly created.

In addition to the edible experiences, we will take advantage of the many other offerings of Provence: the remarkable Roman ruins, including the awe-inspiring Pont du Gard, medieval fortresses, picturesque villages and the colorful farmer’s markets.

Food, wine and art will be dished out in perfect proportions, along with free time for personal adventures. Come and experience Provence, Intentional Table-style.
