Project New Hope Event at Milford Career Center

On Monday, March 31st the Milford Workforce Central Career Center hosted a unique event for veterans of all eras and branches to learn about Project New Hope and how it helps veterans and their families rebuild their lives after serving in military conflict.

According to the organization's website, Project New Hope, a MA-based nonprofit, offers free weekend getaways in a peaceful setting for veterans and their families to address various post-deployment challenges and fears.

“Project New Hope uses a strength-based supportive approach through group discussions, peer sharing experiences, and holistic approaches to healing so that attendees can return from a Project New Hope retreat to their lives, re-charged, in hope, and committed to succeeding in all they do... In short, it's where veterans rebuild with honor.”

Veterans Service Representative Larry Corbin coordinated the well-attended event, which was also a great opportunity for veterans and politicians alike to deepen their understanding of Workforce Central Career Center and the One-Stop Career Center system overall.
