Faith, Race and the Sin of Mass Incarceration

Tuesday evening, November 11th &
Wednesday, November 12th

The Faith Summit, “To Set at Liberty: Faith, Race and the Sin of Mass Incarceration” is a collaborative effort led by the Kaleo Center to ignite, convene and equip 250 faith leaders to understand and lead their congregations and communities in addressing the racialized systems that prohibit African Americans from living productive and healthy lives. The event will address mass incarceration as a human rights issue and give attention to public policies of school suspensions, private prisons, restoring voter rights and explore proven juvenile detention alternatives. Most importantly we will provide faith leaders with the theological, analytical and practical skills to be powerful and sustained agents of change.
