

It's Here!

Eagle Camp

The only requirement for entry is be an Eagle Scout with the swimming merit badge.

OR be an adult volunteer leader to accompany experienced guides

The camp will assemble at Hawk Mountain Scout Reservation travel to Northern Maine and Paddle the Allagash Wilderness Waterway north to the Canadian Border and returning to Hawk Mountain Scout Reservation. For more information please contact David Muldowney at david.muldowney@scouting.org.

Trip Description

Kate Siber of the National Geographic writes:

The Allagash is “The consummate trip, it will take at least nine days, following the narrow, trout-packed Allagash Stream; serene, motorless Allagash Lake; and finally the storied river itself. Along the way, canoeists run Class I and II rapids, see a 45-foot (14-meter) cascading waterfall, and hike up nearby mountains to spot views of Mount Katahdin. But it’s arguably the moments when you’re least busy—gliding silently through the glassy water, observing a moose or an eagle standing sentinel over a nest—that you fall into a peaceful trance impossible anywhere else but this still-wild land”

Trip Plans Currently include:

Enter the Wilderness via Johnson Pond ....

Two nights at Allagash Lake

Explore ice caves

Twilight climb Allagash Mt

Fishing and explore Islands

Night at Little Allagash Falls

Fish explore the Falls

Portage gear at ledge in Allagash Stream (depending upon the water)
run empty canoes at the ledge.

Night at Lock Dam ....

Phantom Locomotives

Night at Pump Handle

Climb for sun set view of Mount Katahdin.

Night at Churchill

Chase Rapids, 9 miles, empty canoe, easy class II

Night just North of Thoroughfare

River paddling

Night at Round Pond

Frogs legs? Coyote tracking

River paddling

Night at Allagash Falls
Paddle out to Allagash village

Add at least one day for "wind bound" as needed.

Enter the wilderness between June 25 to 28.

