

Naval Academy Leadership

June 5, 2014 | Annapolis, MD

Academy Overview

Founded in 1845 by Secretary of the Navy, George Bancroft, the Academy started as the Naval School on 10 acres of old Fort Severn in Annapolis. Since then, the history of the Naval Academy has reflected the history of the United States. As our country has changed culturally and technologically, so has the Naval Academy. In only a few decades, the Navy has moved from a fleet of sail and steam-powered ships to a high-tech fleet with nuclear-powered submarines and surface ships and supersonic aircraft. The Academy has changed, too, giving midshipmen the up-to-date academic and professional training they need to be effective naval officers in their assignments after graduation.

Every day, as the undergraduate college of the naval service, the United States Naval Academy strives to accomplish its mission to develop midshipmen “morally, mentally, and physically.”

Who Should Attend

- Anyone with an interest in improving leadership skills
- This event has broad application to people in any leadership role, designated by position or required by function. Operations and support personnel, hourly associates to the CEO – all can benefit from attending this event.
- Companies that have an interest in improving their leadership culture.

Tour and Seminar Description

Visit the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, MD to see where future officers are educated and trained. The “yard,” as the lush grounds of the Academy are called, reflects the beauty of Beaux Arts architecture and historical monuments commemorating naval events. The Visitor Center is the first stop on a visit to the undergraduate college of the U.S. Navy and U.S. Marine Corps. Information specialists welcome visitors to view the 13-minute film, The Call to Serve, and to take a guided walking tour with a professional, certified guide.

After the tour, three presentations by Naval Officers will take place describing leadership, training and development, and transferring leadership skills throughout an organization.

Academy Mission:

"To develop Midshipmen morally, mentally and physically and to imbue them with the highest ideals of duty, honor and loyalty in order to graduate leaders who are dedicated to a career of naval service and have potential for future development in mind and character to assume the highest responsibilities of command, citizenship and government."

Participant Benefits

- Accelerating business performance by emphasizing leadership development.
- Improve your leader identification, training, and development system.
- Benchmark your program against the world's best leader development system...The United States Navy.
