

eBird Tuesdays at the Ward Museum

The Ward Museum of Wildfowl Art, Salisbury University, invites birders and nature enthusiasts of all levels to join local birders, Ward Museum staff, and SU students and faculty every Tuesday at 9 am to collect data on local migrating bird populations and submit that data into the Cornell Lab of Ornithology's eBird citizen science program.

eBird provides the opportunity to collect real data for real scientific purposes. The need for this data is particularly great on the lower Eastern Shore of Maryland, where numerous birds live, yet limited eBird data is collected.

eBird Tuesdays is free and does not require registration. The event starts in the lobby of the museum every Tuesday at 9 am. Occasionally, events are cancelled due to holidays. Check the education calendar on www.wardmuseum.org for a full schedule. For more information call 410-742-4988, ext. 104 or email wardeducation@salisbury.edu
